Have you dreamed of traveling around the world?

One of less than a dozen females from the U.S. to copilot a small, single engine airplane around the world, Sandi shares her adrenaline-flowing adventures in this inspiring true story.

- Experience the harrowing moment in the cockpit when the solitary engine quits on the very first flight over the frigid Atlantic Ocean with no airport in sight.
- Read about the pilots volunteering their time and skills for two humanitarian missions during this trip.
- Realize why Amelia Earhart's flight failed while Sandi's flight succeeded.

"This amazing story is packed with adventure and daring do. Underlying the whole story are two other threads which put this book into a class of its own. An eye surgeon/pilot who restores sight to many less fortunate people around the world and a computer specialist who gives her time free to teach computer skills in third world countries. This is a compulsive read as you are taken on a world tour covering different cultures and religions. You will live the experience with these two brave and generous adventurers." – Polly Vacher – UK aviatrix – record breaking, twice solo around the world pilot in aid of 'Flying Scholarships for the Disabled'.
